Q: Gnu emacs-ediff not working I am a neophyte Emacs user. This is my first time using emacs-ediff. I have downloaded it using: `sudo apt-get install emacs24-common` which gave me the following output: Reading package lists... Done Building dependency tree Reading state information... Done emacs24-common is already the newest version (2.24.1-4.1ubuntu1). I then installed ediff with the following command: `sudo apt-get install emacs24-ediff` and i got the following output: Reading package lists... Done Building dependency tree Reading state information... Done emacs24-ediff is already the newest version (2.24.1-4.1ubuntu1). I'm not sure what exactly to do next. When I try to run `emacs-ediff-start-diff-process`, it gives me an error that I am supposed to name a diff-output file, but there is no such file in my emacs directory. How can I use this program? I have looked at this emacs ediff link, but not sure if my installation is correct. Edit My goal is to get a list of commands written for a different version of emacs (24.4) beside the commands for the version of emacs I am running (22.1). Thus, I am trying to run emacs 24.4 as a test environment. It may or may not be that the emacs being run as a test environment, has commands that will not work with the emacs running on my regular system. EDIT This is the exact error message that I get when i run `emacs-ediff-start-diff-process`: "C-x C-f": Could not load "/home/anuraj/.emacs" A: Note that you'll have to write the current directory with the absolute path if it isn't the same as the path you're actually running the ediff process from. For example, if you're in the directory /src and you
